INTRODUCTORY.

WE HEREWITH present the Bloomington and Normal City Directory, issued January 1, 1902. The number of names in the book is 15,142. Deducting 1,987 names belonging to Normal, leaves Bloomington 13,155, which multiplied by $2\frac{4}{5}$ (the smallest multiple ever used) makes the population 28,940. In no sense can Bloomington be classed among the "boom cities." Its growth and improvements are both steady and permanent.

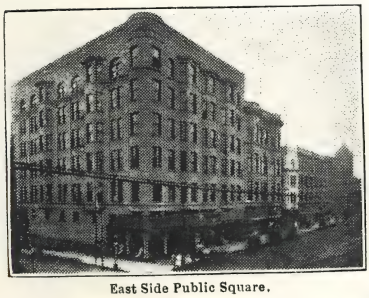

Since our last publication, our beautiful city suffered a loss by the great fire of June 19, 1900, in which $2,000,000 worth of property in the business center was destroyed. The entire burned district has been rebuilt better and finer than before. We present on this page four views of the new buildings and blocks.

Our city map is corrected to date by the City Engineer. New features have been added, making it easy to find parks, public buildings, etc. Thanking the public for patronage, we are,

Very truly,

BOOK-KEEPERS, ATTENTION!

Save Time and Money by Using Burr's Time-Saving Trial Balance Sheet. By Far the Best in Use.

It is so arranged that the names of accounts have to be written but once a year, thereby doing away with the arduous labor of writing the names of accounts each time it is necessary to draw off the balances from the Ledger. No matter which side an account may be on, there is always a place for it either in Dr. or Cr. Column.

It is ruled for Ledger Folios, Names of Accounts, with twelve spaces for Dr. and Cr. following each name, for one year's entry, as illustrated by cut.

The BALANCE SHEET is made of a convenient size—Page 10½ x16—printed and bound in an attractive and durable manner.
